A Big Thank You to Nat Goddard

On Sunday, December 29, after the Epiphany Trope in church, all the children walked to the Church Library to hear the story "The Carpenter's Gift". This children's story, was read by Nat Goddard, who explained that the book was given to Church of Holy Spirit by the Habitat Community in thanksgiving for all the volunteers and fund raising of the past year. It tells the story of the Rockefeller Center Christmas Tree which when taken down each year (since 1976) is used to build Habitat for Humanity homes. The bookplate is made from paper from the tree also. Even more important it is told from the perspective of a boy named Henry from Maine whose Dad and he sell Christmas trees at Rockefeller Center. They are very poor and live in a shack with no heat. One year they have a few trees left and with gratefulness for so many sold they give them to the construction workers who work near their tree market and with whom they have become friends. The next day on Christmas morning the workers arrive in trucks to Henry's shack and build him a home. It is the story of his life until he is a Grandfather. Can you imagine the ending?

We then had juice and cookies and played Bible Pictionary and checkers and looked at children's books until families arrived to pick up the children.
